Speakers' Biographies

Kristin Graham Koehler is a Partner with Sidley Austin LLP in its Washington, DC office and also serves on the firm's Executive Committee. She has handled numerous US Department of Justice criminal and civil investigations involving healthcare fraud, antitrust, securities fraud, and violations of the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act. Ms. Koehler has significant experience representing clients in qui tam matters, State AG investigations, and congressional investigations, and has negotiated numerous Corporate Integrity Agreements with the HHS Office of Inspector General. With colleague Brian Morrissey, she authored a 2013 Washington Legal Foundation MONOGRAPH, "The View from the Front Lines: Litigation under the False Claims Act in a New Era of Enforcement."

Craig D. Margolis is a Partner with Vinson & Elkins LLP in its Washington, DC office, where he is a member of the firm's Government Investigation and White Collar Criminal Defense practice. His practice focuses on clients' internal investigation and compliance matters, as well as defending clients in government investigations and prosecutions, congressional investigations, and other proceedings, in diverse areas such as the False Claims Act, government contracts procurement fraud, health care fraud, and the Foreign Corrupt Practices Act. Mr. Margolis served as an Assistant United States Attorney from 1999 to 2004, prosecuting, among other matters, Medicare/Medicaid and private payor health care fraud and abuse.
